Senior Product Manager Payments

Responsibilities

- Take a leading role in shaping and executing Tink's overall product strategy and roadmap in the Payments domain
- Refine and expand Tink's existing Payments products across a wide variety of markets and customer segments
- Develop the next generation of Payments products from idea to execution in support of Tink's strategy
- Lead developments in a multidisciplinary team and across the organisation for the best end-to-end solutions to customers
- Manage a team of Product Managers
- Support our engineering teams in clearly defining and framing customer problems and clearly communicating requirements, roadmap and priorities
- Have direct interactions with key customers and partners
- Through internal stakeholder collaboration, gain a strong understanding of our customer's needs (present and future) and develop a cohesive vision of Tink's payment products

Qualifications

- Experience of analysing customer problems and needs, shaping and delivering product strategy, and articulating product roadmaps
- A track record of leading complex initiatives: we look for individuals that can get down to nitty-gritty details if needed but even more importantly those who never lose sight of long term objectives
- Ideally you have worked in the payments industry and have an understanding of the regulatory environment for players in the money flow
- Passions that you follow – it does not matter whether it's working with numbers, knowledge of the fintech domain, design or DIY home projects – we love people who have ambitions and persistence to achieve great things
- You see yourself standing behind and supporting Tink's ambition to change the future of banking

Hiring organization

Tink

Tink is Europe's leading open banking platform that enables banks, fintechs and startups to develop data-driven financial services. Through one API, Tink allows customers to access aggregated financial data, initiate payments, enrich transactions, verify account ownership and build personal finance management tools. Tink connects to more than 3,400 banks that reach over 250 million bank customers across Europe. Founded in 2012 in Stockholm, Tink became a wholly owned subsidiary of Visa in 2022. Tink's 500 employees serve more than 300 banks and fintechs in 18 European markets, out of offices in 13 countries. Tink powers the new world of finance.
